

These two components explain 57.67 % of the point variability.